OFFICE OF CLERK DECLARED VACANT

CAUTION IS URGED BY FOOD DEALERS

County Commissioners in Special Session Appoint D. W. Thompson to Succeed Willard Stout.

Prices are Forced Up by Unnecessary Buying, According to Local Supply Merchants.

BOTH ARE CLAIMING POSITION
Stout Insists That Only Higher Court Has Authority to Declare County Office Vacant.

DEMAND IS UNUSUALLY HEAVY
Many Residents are Said to be Buying Several Months' Supply of Canned Goods Now.

At a special session of the county commissioners this morning, the office of county clerk was declared vacant and then D. W. Thompson, deputy clerk, was appointed by the board to fill the unexpired term of Willard Stout, who was recently found short in the amount of $6235.94 in his accounts by the field examiners of the state board of accounts. Stout refuses to recognize the authority of the commissioners to declare his office vacant, and remains at the office. As a result both men are claiming to be in charge of the department.

The resolution adopted by the commissioners follows:
"In the matter of the vacancy in the Office of Clerk of the Jackson Circuit Court.

"It appearing to the satisfaction of the Board of Commissioners that the office of Clerk of the Jackson Circuit Court for the County of Jackson and State of Indiana is vacant in consequence of the abandonment of said office by Willard Stout, the late incumbent thereof and which office is now unlawfully occupied, controlled and managed by the National Surety Company, which has intruded therein, and in consequence of said Willard Stout, while acting as such officers, having forfeited and vacated said office and disqualified himself to hold the same by unlawfully appropriating and converting to his own use trust funds held by him as such officer to the amount of more than $6,000, and having failed, neglected and refused to account for, produce and pay over such converted trust funds, the Board now appoints David W. Thompson to the office of Clerk of the Jackson Circuit Court of Jackson County, Indiana to fill such vacancy until his successor shall be elected and qualified and now comes said David W. Thompson and accepts said appointment and files and submit his bond properly conditioned in the penal sum of $20,000 with The Maryland Casualty Company as surety thereon, which bond is by the Board now approved and ordered filed as by law provided. * * *

When asked about the action of the commissioners Stout said this afternoon that he had not been notified that such action was to be taken and did not know that it was taken except from hearsay. He said that Thompson claimed to be in possession of the office, but that he had no power to act. The commissioners will recognize Thompson in their transactions with the clerk's office, however. Stout insisted that he could not be removed in the manner which was adopted by the commissioners and said that they could not legally oust him. He has employed attorneys and it is expected that further legal action will be taken to determine "who's who" in the clerk's office.

It is presumed that steps will be taken immediately to unravel the tangle as persons who have business with that department of the county government will be rather perplexed to know just who is in authority. Thompson has completed all the preliminaries necessary before he can take over the office and has already been sworn in.

LOCAL BUSINESS MAN PASSES AWAY

C. E. T. Dobbins, Aged 47, Former Proprietor of New Lynn Hotel, Succumbs to Pneumonia.

SERIOUSLY ILL FOR A WEEK

Served Two Years as President of Indiana Hotel Keepers' Association—Funeral Tomorrow.

After an illness of ten days with pneumonia, Calvin E. T. Dobbins, aged forty-seven years, retired business man and for two years president of the Indiana Hotel Keepers' Association, died at 4:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home on North Chestnut street. His condition had been serious for the last week and little hope was extended for his recovery. He had been in declining health for about two years and was unable to ward off his fatal illness which developed from a severe cold.

Before Mr. Dobbins retired from active business life he was prominently identified with the business circles of the city. For more than eleven years he was the owner and manager of the New Lynn Hotel, relinquishing the management five years ago. He was a public spirited citizen and was always ready to devote his time and services to any enterprise which he believed was for the advancement and growth of the city. He was an interested member of the Seymour Commercial Club and for a number of years was affiliated with several of its most important committees.

Mr. Dobbins was born on a farm southwest of the city on February 20, 1870, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dobbins. He spent all of his life in Seymour. During the early years of manhood he was engaged as a traveling salesman and during that time made a large acquaintance in the state. When he took over the New Lynn Hotel he gave up traveling so that he could devote his entire time to the business.

SEVEN BUSHEL OF SEED POTATOES DISTRIBUTED

Garden Committee Supplies Residents of Southwest Part of City With Seed Stock.

Seven bushel of seed potatoes, all cut for planting, were distributed among residents in the southwest part of the city this morning by the back yard garden committee of the county food commission.

The seed were distributed from the Lynn street school building. Many who had made requests for seed failed to come after them and the committee delivered their share to their houses. Potatoes were the only seed to be put out by the committee at this time. It was felt that the lettuce, radish, pea, beet seed etc. could be supplied by most of the gardeners themselves. Later in the season the committee expects to distribute bean seed, and possibly sweet corn.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL PLANNED HERE

First Baptist Sunday School Decides to Arrange for a Six Weeks Term During the Summer.

Plans are being made by the First Baptist Sunday School of this city to conduct a Daily Vacation Bible School this summer. Bible study will be provided five mornings of the week for all ages from the kindergarten age to high school pupils who wish to take the course of study outlined by the state board of education on which credit on the regular high school course may be obtained. The school will open in June and continue for six weeks with a faculty of volunteer teachers under the direction of a competent principal.

The Daily Vacation Bible School plan originated a few years ago in New York City. Two years ago the plan was tried first in Indiana at Gary and Hammond. Last year the number will reach at least fifteen. Experience in other places indicates that there is no difficulty in securing pupils, as all children are admitted and welcome whether they are affiliated with the Baptist church or not.

Rev. S. L. Roberts, of Franklin, State Sunday School Director for the Baptists of Indiana, was present Thursday evening at the meeting of Sunday School officers and teachers. He presented stereopticon pictures of classes that are doing the daily vacation Bible school work successfully in other parts of Indiana, along with the plan on which these schools are conducted and the advantages to the children resulting from the schools in other communities. This will be a new feature for Seymour, but indications are that it will meet a hearty response.

BIG CROWD JOINS IN PATRIOTIC EXERCISES

Flag Raising and Stirring Addresses Mark Rally at Cortland—Music by Seymour Band.

One of the biggest and most enthusiastic patriotic demonstrations that has been arranged in Jackson county since the United States declared war against Germany was held at Cortland this afternoon. The exercises mark the close of the school term and the Cortland Boy Scouts and school children of the Hamilton township schools had an important place in the program. The Boy Scouts from this city also attended. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Seymour Concert Band. Addresses were made by Thomas M. Honan, Judge John M. Lewis and others. The County Food Commission was represented and the speakers explained the purposes of the organization. During the afternoon a large flag was raised under the auspices of the Cortland Boy Scouts. The Cortland school children also gave a drill exhibition. Quite a number from this city drove to Cortland this afternoon in automobiles.

REQUEST MADE FOR FOOD SUPERVISION

Department of Agriculture Demands Congress to Grant Federal Control of Supplies.

RULES WOULD BE DRASTIC

Authority if Granted Would be Greater Than in any European Country Except Germany.

By United Press.

Washington, April 20—The department of agriculture today asked authority of congress which, if granted, will practically place the country's entire food production under strict government supervision. In addition to a nation wide investigation of the food market the department asks authority to "license and supervise operation of plants, mills, breweries, distilleries and all other establishments in which food or agricultural implements are prepared, manufactured or sold."

Discussing the general question of food conservation, Secretary Houston hinted at the advisability of possible regulation or prohibition of the manufacture of liquor saying:

"Some European nations have secured an addition to the food supply by reducing the production of alcoholic liquors. It is estimated that the value of food materials entering into the manufacture of alcoholic beverages in this country in one year is $145,000,000."

The power, if granted, would include authority to make regulations governing use and operation of food industries, including the taking over and operation of them "whenever such course may be necessary in the public interest."

The authorization requested is said to be far more drastic than any power asked even by European belligerents excepting perhaps Germany. In case of extreme emergency the government would have power to purchase, store and subsequently dispose of food products and fix minimum and maximum prices.

FRENCH RECLAIM 77 MILES OF TERRITORY FROM GERMANS

Forty Thousand Teutons Literally Wiped Out by French Artillery in an Attack.

By United Press.

With the French Armies, April 20.—Seventy-seven miles of French territory have been reclaimed up to today from the Germans by the Great French offensive. The French armies have now progressed over a front of nearly forty miles to a depth of from three-quarters to four miles. A score of villages and towns have been taken.

Forty thousand Germans in one attack were literally wiped out by French artillery. Demoralization is spreading among the Germans—even among their own officers. Great masses of re-enforcements have been unable to stop the French rush.

WAR PROHIBITION APPEARS CERTAIN

President and Cabinet Discuss Measure at Conference on Distribution of Food.

RECOMMENDATIONS ARE MADE

Problem of Handling Food Crisis Includes Power to Shut Off Liquor Manufacture.

By United Press.

Washington, April 20.—Whether war prohibition will be an emergency measure of the present session of congress will be determined shortly. President Wilson and his cabinet this afternoon planned to take up the recommendations of the agricultural department regarding food conservation and distribution.

As prohibition is closely connected with the food problem, it undoubtedly will be taken up at the same time. The agricultural department's recommendations will probably be turned over to congress next week and at that time the administration's attitude on war prohibition will also be made known.

It is probable congress will be asked to authorize the government to take any action deemed necessary in handling the food situation during the present crisis and this would include power to shut off the supply of grain and other food stuffs to distilleries and breweries.

Buenos Aires, April 20.—Reports from Uruguay today declared that the German revolt in Brazil's provinces near the Uruguayan boundary was growing. Refugees were pouring into Uruguay, reporting fighting between the German rebels and the government forces in Brazil. Reports indicated a serious condition of affairs in probably three Brazilian states. The Uruguayan government dispatched troops to the frontier to prevent violation of neutrality.

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION OF COLFAX BUILDING FIRE

Indianapolis, April 20—Grand jury investigation of the Colfax building fire in which six persons lost their lives was made certain this afternoon when county prosecutor, Rucker, announced he would place evidence before the grand jury. Coroner Poole said he believed the city building code had been violated. Investigation proved to official satisfaction that the explosion was caused by motion picture films stored in barrels and unprotected by a fire proof vault.

NERVOUSNESS AND BLUES

Symptoms of More Serious Sickness.

Washington Park, Ill.—“I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. ### THE HOME GARDEN

WHAT TO DO IN APRIL

The Republican presents to its readers hints for the gardener for April that have been prepared by the experts of the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, of Washington, D. C. This organization, which is affiliated with the Conservation Department of the American Forestry Association, will give the readers of The Republican expert advice on garden work.

Transplant late in April tomato, pepper and eggplant from plant frame or cold frame to garden.

Bed sweet potato in plant frame. Sow celery seeds in plant frame.

Transplant annual flower plants into flower borders.

Transplant dahlias and snap-dragon plants into flower borders.

Plant summer flowering bulbs. Plant beans, Swiss chard, kohlrabi, carrots, parsnips, salsify, corn, cucumbers, melons, squash, and okra.

Sow seeds of alyssum, cosmos, nigella, and nasturtium in flower borders.

Keep soil between rows mellow. Spray for insect enemies.

Plan for disposing of various crops.

CABBAGES.

No other vegetable has increased in popularity in the past few years as the cabbage, says today's garden lesson from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission of Washington, which is co-operating with the Republican to bring about the heavy planting of home gardens.

Formerly its principal use was by the German population in the United States. Today it is universally eaten. It is plentiful in the late fall, winter and spring months, when other green vegetables are scarce.

Properly cooked cabbage is delicate and digestible. Over-cooking of cabbage makes it indigestible. Young cabbage should never be eaten, the loss is material, but when cooked longer than thirty minutes, fifty per cent. or more fails to germinate, the loss is great.

Cabbage is a heavy garden feeder and a quick grower. For that reason it should have rich soil if possible, and if the planting is done early enough in the spring it is possible to get two crops from the same land.

Cabbage does well in heavy soil—particularly large cabbage—and for that reason is likely to thrive on a back yard garden. It is too late to plant now for the early crop unless you can buy seedling plants, but just the right time to be planning for the late crop.

Cabbage plants are improved by transplanting. For late cabbages, therefore, the seeds should be planted in a small outdoor bed in May. Plant the seeds in rows about three to six inches apart, and about 25 inches apart. A quarter of an ounce of seed will produce enough plants to make 100 feet of row.

CALVIN E. T. DOBBINS.

Retired Business Man and Former President of the Indiana Hotel Keepers' Association Dies of Pneumonia.

When the seedlings come up they moist sawdust or sand to within may need thinning out the excess two inches of the top. plants being transplanted in the A piece of moistened muslin seed bed if desired.

In July transplant these seedlings to the garden, placing the plants eighteen inches apart in rows three feet apart or slightly less. The ten rows of ten squares each on the same method of transplanting should be followed now with the early seedlings which you have bought or grown in indoor seed boxes.

TESTING OF SEED CORN URGED BY THE COMMITTEE

Simple Method Which Can Be Used by Any Farmer to Prevent Loss From Poor Seed.

Governor Goodrich has set apart April 21st as the day when all seed corn tests should begin where this has not been done already. Homer G. Davis, a member of the waste materials committee, urges that Jackson county farmers make thorough test of all corn to be planted. This will avoid needless loss after corn planting time.

In order to prevent, as far as possible, the danger of having a poor stand, every ear of corn should be tested.

Each grain of corn planted should produce at least one ear. An average ear of seed corn contains about 750 kernels, which ought to produce as many ears. Five ears should produce at least forty-five bushels of corn. If any per cent. of the seed corn planted fails to germinate, the loss is material, but when tested, the loss is great.

While there may be exceptions to the rule, it will be found that in most instances if two or more kernels in an ear are dead, the whole ear is defective for a week or ten days after, he does not have time to make tests, but must immediately plant again, with probably the same result. These delays necessarily postpone a growth which should take place early in the season.

To test enough corn to plant forty acres will require about four or five hours' work, a matter of time hardly worth considering. The work of testing should be started early. A germinator can be made from a box 25 inches or more wide, 4 inches high, and about 25 inches long, for each bushel of corn ounce of seed will produce enough plants to make 100 feet of row.

This box should be filled with

"PROOF ENOUGH" HOLTZ CHARGES

Quick Benefits Convinces Farmer That Tanlac Is the Master Medicine

Elkhart, Indiana, April 19, 1917—“My mother gained so much relief from one bottle of Tanlac that she continued using the medicine, and now, after taking four bottles she really feels like a new woman,” Martin Holtz, a well known farmer residing near here on rural route No. 2, Cassopolis, Ind., said on February 21. The mother, Mrs. Odenia Holtz, as well as her son, are highly respected and well known in this vicinity.

“My mother, who is 77 years old, was in a generally run down condition,” Mr. Holtz continued. Her stomach and kidneys were out of shape. She couldn't eat anything without suffering annoying gas formations in her stomach. She was restless at night and found it hard to sleep. She couldn't even do her house work.

“Mrs. Stark, a neighbor of ours, told how much she had been benefited through Tanlac and so I bought a bottle for mother. As I have said, she gained so much relief from this one bottle that she was thoroughly convinced of the medicine's merits and continued taking it.”

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like.

Tanlac is now being introduced and explained in Seymour at Federmann's Drug Store, successor to Carter's Drug Store.

139 CADETS ARE GRADUATED FROM U. S. MILITARY ACADEMY

Members of 1917 Class to Become Lieutenants in New Army Being Formed.

By United Press.

West Point, N. Y., April 20.—One hundred thirty-nine cadets graduated from the United States Military Academy today and took their places as lieutenants in the new army being formed to fight Germany.

They are the members of the class of 1917 which expected to be graduated in June next with all the pleasant features incident to a West Point “June week” ceremony. Instead the men marched to their auditorium under the stern influence of discipline and the grim business-like, war-game-atmosphere which prevades the school since hostilities with the Germans broke out.

These hundred and thirty-nine are the survival of the fittest,—those who have been able to stand up under the constant grind of West Point severity—and they are only a part of the class that entered four years ago next June to fill up nearly two hundred vacancies then existing in the Corps of Cadets. The rest of the lads have passed out, some forced out by examinations which were too much for them and others through resignations, voluntarily, when it was apparent they were unable to keep up with the pace.

The class of '17 is a representative of West Point class drilled to Washington, April 20.—Breach of trust by corporate officials "often for personal gain," and readiness of big banking interests to act as "tools and dummies for the promoters," were advanced as reasons for the causing of the wrecking of the Pierre Marquette and Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroads in a report by the interstate commerce commission today to the house interstate commerce committee. In scoring interests for the transactions in connection with these roads, the commission said that "only a court with criminal jurisdiction could deal adequately with them."

Big Jack Dempsey Tells Of His Duty to Country

"The power of the Navy is in me." Big Jack Dempsey, fireman recruit thus unburdened himself as he sat with legs dangling on the turret of the Virginia.

Around him seethed the preparation for war. From the huge Navy Yard shops arose the din and clamor of a mighty force pushing the final work to place in readiness the big steel fighting machines which are to play an important part in upholding the honor of our Nation. On the parade ground adjacent, a couple of hundred blue jackets were running a quarter mile oval, hardening up for their work ahead.

Something of the inspiration of this vitally energetic scene glistened in his eyes, as he swept his pipe stem in a short semicircle before him to emphasize the might of which he was master.

Huge of frame, horny of hand is Dempsey. It was only two days ago that he drifted into the Navy recruiting office to offer himself to his country.

"Whether its salorin' or soldierin' I told thim at the recruiting office, its the same to me as long as I can serve me country. Anyways that a man can serve and do his duty in a totem oik this is the best way," was the gravely enunciated philosophy.

"So I enlist as a fireman, the greatest branch of the service of the U. S. Navy."

"Whin a man has put in a few years on the job, there is somethin' about the firebox of an engin that pulls you to it, wance you have fed the big, hungry mouths that are always open and roarin'."

"And after a little hustle of fed-in' the big babies, the job is done and ye can take yer ease while the byes above are drilling and the ship is rollin' easy-like in the cradle ov the sea."

"Every man in his task, says I, and I'm a fireman by inclination and force of habit. And it is me duty to play fireman for Uncle Sam whin he needs me above all others."

"Wance I stoked on a tramp steamer, and it was there I learned the power ov me callin'."

"We wuz down where the heathens and the fever wuz thick as mud, an wan the sickness took hold ov the officers and crew until they wuz only a handful ov us left to navigate the craft. What with the fever raging we had a powerful time. Wan after another the byes below fell down with sickness, and it was thin the real trouble began."

"It wuz the Captain himself who came down to talk to them. 'Byes' he said, 'I kin get along widout me officers, but for the love of Hivin, me ship will perish if me firemen desert me in this me hour ov need.'"

"That is why I say the power ov the Navy is in me. Whin the coal stops, the battleship stops, and the mimic can take yer at his own time."

Across the ship between the Virginia and the next dock, the Sailor drill had spread out into an open order exercise. They were the "men behind the guns," an integral part of the great fighting mechanism which is soon to spread its influence worldwide in the mighty conflict facing this Nation. I looked sideways at the man beside me, who represented the silent working force of the American battleships, but his gaze was lifted above the immediate animation of moving units. It rested in the smoke clouds coming from the high stack of an adjoining vessel.

"The byes hev started work fer Uncle Sam," he observed, with a touch of pride. And I knew that down in the cavernous recesses of that gray steel hull, other representatives of the "power ov the Navy" were bending their backs to the end that the traditions of the American Navy might be upheld and the honor of the Flag maintained upon the seas.

The Navy needs more firemen as well as men in other branches of the service. It needs thousands more patriots like Jack Dempsey.

Men Who Run U. S. Navy.

By United Press.

Washington.—When on his first long cruise after leaving Annapolis, Admiral A. G. Winterhalter sailed on a Friday, "Crossed the line" on Friday, and arrived on Friday.

But it bore no fruits of misfortune. Today, Admiral Winterhalter has just relinquished supreme command of the U. S. fleet in the Asiatic after a most successful regime. He is slated for even more responsible duties in the near future.

Then the United States took over the Hawaiian Islands in 1898, it was Winterhalter, then flag-lieutenant, who hoisted the stars and stripes over the new territory.

Besides being a fighter, the Admiral is a man of the highest scientific and literary attainments.

When the Navy established its new naval observatory at Washington, Winterhalter was selected to make a tour of all European observatories and scientific institutions to assist in designing the new plant.

Probably the most accomplished linguist in the Navy, Admiral Winterhalter speaks or reads within one of a dozen languages.

Notice to Taxpayers.

SUFFERED 30 YEARS--SAYS K. R. R. IS GREATEST RHEUMATISM REMEDY

"Every rheumatic patient in the United States should know about it," says Mr. J. B. Summons, of Warsaw, Ky., in a letter telling how wonderfully K. R. R. helped him. "I will be 60 years old the 12th of May, and have been bothered with the Rheumatism more or less for 30 years, and have taken 40 different things in that time, and I have never taken anything that is as good as your remedy."

"I work in a furniture factory here, and our foreman came here from Louisville. I went to the factory one morning with one of my hands all swollen up, and he asked me what was the matter with it, and I told him I had Rheumatism in it, and he said to me, why don't you send down to Louisville and get that Rheumatic Remedy and get cured of it. I told him I knew nothing about it. He then told me all about it, so I sent down and got it, and I want to say it was the best day's work I ever did. I can't recommend it too highly to all rheumatic sufferers."—J. B. Summons, Warsaw, Ky.

Mr. Summons says in another letter: "I am honest in believing it the greatest Rheumatic Remedy in the world." Surely any sufferer who reads such a letter from a venerable man like Mr. Summons will try K. R. R. for rheumatism, lumbago, gout and kindred uric acid troubles. Get a bottle today and cure yourself. You'll be surprised at the quick relief K. R. R. will give you.

Free trial size containing eight doses sent for 10c stamps to cover mailing. Kampfueller Rheumatic Remedy Co., Inc., 206 Main St., Louisville, Ky.

The Dairy Club work, the boy or girl keeps a record of milk production of the cow for a period of two months having the milk tested once every month. The cost account of the feed is also kept and the profits figured at the end of the project. In certain communities it might be desirable to organize special clubs such as, Tomato Clubs, Potato Clubs or Poultry Clubs and special arrangements can be made where sufficient numbers care to engage in this work. This year we are offering special clubs work for girls such as in sewing, bread baking and garden and canning clubs. In this work we ask the women of the community to supervise the work helping the girls to use the proper methods. In the girls' work the girls are not required to meet together to do this work but can do it in their own homes, thus making it a part of their home work.

Suitable premiums will be offered for every line of club work. Free trips to the Farmer's Short Course at Purdue University will be offered from every township and in a number of cases special premiums will be given such as Pure Bred Pigs, Seed Corn and etc. Jackson county has been keeping well to the front in club work in the state. For two years past our County Corn Club winners have won the championship of Section 4 in Indiana, winning the free trips to Washington, D. C.

Florence Downing, our Pig Club Champion, was among the first twenty in the pig growing contest with nearly five hundred entrance. Helen Linke, of Washington township, our last year's winner in the Dairy Club, stood seventh in the state.

This year we have been expecting our boys and girls between the ages of ten and eighteen years to do especially good work and again win state honors. Those expecting to take up any line of the Club work should arrange to see or write the county agent, A. D. Cobb, at Brownstown, Ind., stating the Club work they expect to take up when rules and instructions will be forwarded them at once.

HOGS DIFFICULT TO CONTROL

When a hog once gets the habit of getting out of its yard, pasture or whatever its inclosure may be, it is one of the most difficult animals to control. You can stop a breachy horse or cow if you build a fence high enough, but a hog goes through. If there is no hole in the fence it makes one. Of course if the fence was so tight at first that the hog could not get through, it won't bother you the second and forty-ninth time.

Insufficient or irregular feeding, or failing to supply something which the animals crave in the feed makes hogs restless and ready to take the first chance of exploring the outside world in hopes of finding what they failed to find in their troughs.

It saves time and patience to keep them contented and at home.

TREATING HOGS WITH WORMS

Prescription Given for Pig Weighing About 100 Pounds—Give Salt, Sulphur and Charcoal.

To expel worms from hogs the following prescription is right for a pig weighing about 100 pounds: Santonin, five grains; calomel, two grains; areca nut, two grains; sodium bicarbonate, one dram. Keep the hogs off feed for about 12 hours and give the dose in a slop of middlings. The evening of the same day give a mash of wheat bran. This will flush the bowels. Gather all worms and burn them.

Worms often are the forerunner of disease.

If a hog or pig has a big appetite and thriffliness condition, with dry dead hair, it is a good indication of the presence of worms.

Salt and sulphur and charcoal should be kept in every pigpen and pig yard so the pigs can help themselves.

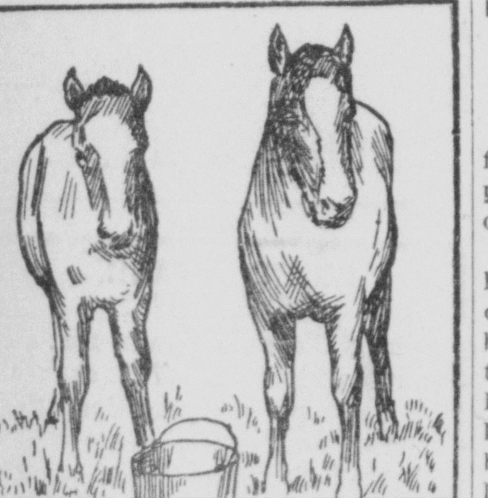

This is a corrective and a preventive of worms.

COLTS RESPOND TO FEEDING

Size of Animal Determined First Winter After Weaning—Aim to Build Up Big Frame.

No farm animal will pay more for abundant feeding than the colt. The first winter after weaning, the ultimate size of the colt is largely determined. We understand that the French Percheron breeders feed as much as ten pounds daily of bran and oats to their weanling colts.

The object of feeding the weanling colt is to induce the formation of a big frame, with heavy muscling. Our aim is not fat. Therefore, we prefer to feed some bran, oil meal, and oats in connection with corn. For this reason, also, we prefer a good quality of clover or alfalfa hay to timothy hay. In connection with timothy or corn stover, we would feed a mixture of five parts of corn, three parts of oats, three parts of bran, and two parts of oil meal; while in connection with good clover or alfalfa hay, we would make the mixture five parts of corn, three parts of oats, two parts of bran, and one part of oil meal.

To a colt of draft ancestry, designed for market, we would feed at least five pounds of such a mixture the first winter, and, as the winter wears on, we might increase to seven or even ten pounds.—Wallace's Farmer.

BIG TRUTH IN "LOAFER LAND"

Job of Clearing Fields of Stumps Can Be Done on Days When Other Work Is Not Pressing.

Everybody hates a loafer around who consumes without giving anything in return. United States agricultural department, in naming stump land "loafer land," has struck upon a big truth that every farmer should take into consideration.

Men who have made careful study of the situation claim that every 12-inch stump on your place wastes 100 square feet of land. At first this statement may seem somewhat surprising and many farmers seem to feel that by pasturing their stump land there is no waste at all.

This is poor figuring, says California

Cultivator. In most stump fields there is an average of 150 stumps to the acre, some much larger than 12 inches. With an average of 150 stumps to the acre you are simply wasting 15,000 square feet of land to each acre, and as there are only 43,000 square feet to the acre, you are wasting one-third of your land. Suppose someone were to propose to you that of each 30-acre pasture you shut off ten acres for the pure joy of seeing it wasted. You would think him utterly absurd, but it is no more absurd than to continue letting your land lie in a stumpage.

And after all it doesn't take long to clear off the stumps. The job can be done on the days when you can't work at anything else and by owning a good stump puller or being ready with dynamite you will find a surprising lot of "loafer land" converted to usefulness for the year's end.

GOOD AS VEGETABLE MATTER

Refuse Hay, Straw Litter, and Other Rubbish Can Be Utilized in Orchard and Garden.

The value of refuse hay, straw litter and other rubbish for vegetable matter on orchard and garden soil has hardly been realized. Much of this material goes to waste every year that might be used to enrich the garden and orchard soil.

Now is the time to apply such materials to the soil, as it will take some time for it to decay and be of use to the soil. By applying this fall and turning it under the soil will be revived and enriched and hence made ready for preparation and planting next spring.

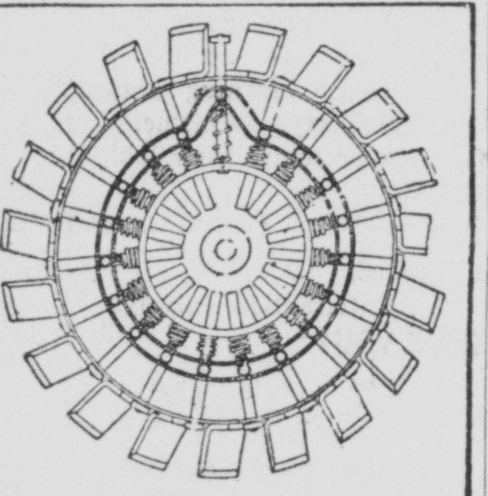

Most gardens could be made far more productive than they have been. To do this it will be necessary to begin on time. Humus is the greatest need in most instances, for without it little can be done in good preparation and ample cultivation.

Barnyard manure is better than waste litter, straw, etc., but manure is generally scarce, not enough being available to improve the soil on most farms. To supplement manure all waste vegetable matter should be used.

MAKE USE OF FROSTED CORN

It Should Be Cut as Soon as Possible, to Save Plant Food—Silage Should Be Covered.

If the standing corn in the field is frosted it should be cut as quickly as possible, or it will cause a great loss of plant food.

An expert says: "The effect of a hard or black frost in freezing the cells of the corn fodder, causes the breaking of the individual cells and the evaporation of sap that should be left in the stalks and leaves. The leaves turn white and become so brittle that in handling most of the leaves and a portion of the stalk will be lost. The corn on the ear will become soft and will only be fit for feeding to hogs and cattle as it will not keep any length of time."

An authority says: "If frosted corn is to be put into the silo, it should be cut as quickly as possible and, if rather dry, well watered as it is put in the silo. The silage should be well packed, to exclude the air. After the silage is all in, let it settle for a few days, then sow oats quite thick over the silage. The oats will germinate in a few days and make sufficient growth to protect the silage. The oats make a better cover than earth or boards and can be easily removed when the silage is to be used."

CURING POP CORN PROPERLY

Ears Should Be Left on Stalks Until Fully Ripened—Free Circulation of Air Is Essential.

To successfully cure popcorn so it will pop early in the winter, the ears should be left on the stalks until the grains are fully ripened, and then pulled off, husk and all. This may be laid on a floor, or placed in sacks which are more or less open for the passage of air, and hung up in a dry room which is well ventilated and free from rats and mice.

If the husks are removed when the corn is pulled from the stalk, it dries out too rapidly, and the kernels will not pop as freely as they will if dried more slowly.

Popcorn can be too dry at time of popping. Corn after once cured, does best if kept where the air is only moderately dry. Corn kept behind a stove will not pop as freely as corn kept in a room where there is a little dampness part of the time.

ADVANTAGE OF WEEDING HOE

Edges Are So Turned Up That Fallen Stalks Ride Over the Edges and Are Not Injured.

This hoe is designed particularly for weeding onions, but can, of course, be used for weeding of any kind. One advantage mentioned is that the edges are turned up so that fallen stalks ride over the edges and are not cut. The angle of the hoe is adjusted by means of the set screw.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

SHEEP SENSITIVE TO DRAFTS

Animals Will Not Stand Dampness and Thorough Wetting Will Cause Diminution of Profits.

Avoid having the sheep caught in an early but cold fall rain. Sheep will stand any amount of dry cold, but they will not stand dampness. A thorough wetting will cause the flock to snuffle all winter, with a consequent diminution of profits. A fleece holds so much water and takes so long to dry, that the amount of heat lost by the animal during the process of drying will seriously affect its vitality.

It seems strange, too, but sheep are sensitive to drafts. They will thrive in intensely cold weather, with but a rude shelter. But if inclosed in a pen or stable through which the wind is able to seep, harm is sure to follow.

To keep the flock in the very best of condition they should have a supply of roots. Clover or alfalfa hay fed with some grain and turnips or mangels will bring them through the winter in a thrifty and profitable condition.

TOAD IS GARDEN POLICEMAN

Seventy-Seven Per Cent of His Diet Is Composed of Insects—Should Be Welcome Guest.

The toad is a garden policeman. Seventy-seven per cent of his diet is composed of insects and the remainder consists of spiders and worms of all kinds.

The toad is in a position to capture his "daily bread" with his tongue. In this respect he is like some who get their living by talking.

A toad should be a welcome guest in a garden or flower bed.

WEED IS MOST UNDESIRABLE

Keeping Ahead of Noxious Plant Requires Knowledge and Perseverance on Part of Farmer.

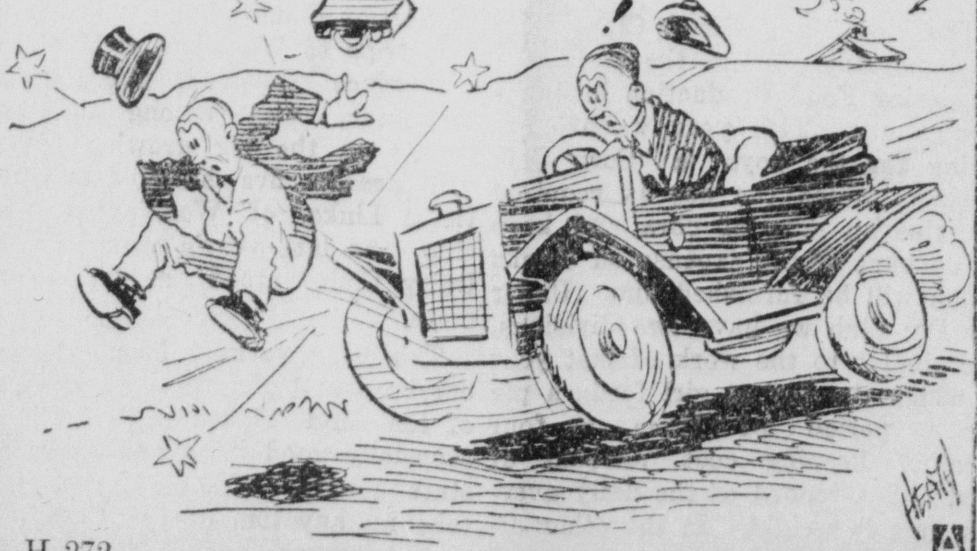

A good deal has been said about weeds and all will agree that they are most undesirable. No one cares to grow them in crops and yet they grow, and that luxuriantly, if unrestrained.

Keeping ahead of the weeds requires perseverance and a correct knowledge of the best way to keep them down.

MR. NORTH WIND.

"Well, how do you do," said Mr. North Wind in his blustery voice.

"I am extremely well and brisk," said Mr. East Wind.

"I am very glad to see you," continued Mr. North Wind. "Have you been quite well lately?"

"Yes, indeed," said Mr. East Wind. "And I can see that it is quite useless to ask you that question. For you look extremely well. Oh, so strong and energetic."

"That's just what I am," said Mr. North Wind. "But I am very glad to meet you today. How about coming on a trip with me?"

"What sort of a trip are you going to take?" asked Mr. East Wind. "A windy trip," laughed Mr. North Wind.

"I can well believe that," said Mr. East Wind. "And when are you going to start?"

"At once," said Mr. North Wind, as he blew and whistled through the air. "I'm ready," said Mr. East Wind. And together they started.

Over the cities and towns they traveled. They went over a great many

"How Terrific Are the March Winds?"

and they got all the little Breezes, their grandchildren, to work with them.

They visited the lakes and made the waves dance and roar with glee. They talked to all the trees and got them shaking with laughter and waving about in high excitement.

Everywhere they went they laughed and joked with all the things they met—the shrubs, trees, rivers, and even the shutters on the outside of windows.

What a time they did have with the shutters! They told them such jokes, that the shutters almost fell off laughing. And shutters always shake and rattle with laughter when the North Wind tells them a joke.

Such a joke as the North Wind is! He can think up more jokes than any other wind. And how he does enjoy it himself. The jolly old soul!

"I should think I would feel so cool and refreshing," said Mr. North Wind. "I am sure People must enjoy me. Watch them tie the veils around their heads so I won't blow off their hats—heigh-ho, heigh-ho! I think I shall just have to sing a song. Please sing softly, Mr. East Wind, a nice accompaniment for my song." And Mr. North Wind began his song:

"I'm the North Wind so bold,
"I am good and cold.
"I am so brisk,
"That folks run the risk,
"Of losing their hats,
"So I say Jing-Bats."

"Whatever does Jing-Bats mean, or what do they mean? Just what are they anyway?" asked Mr. East Wind. "They don't mean anything," said

Mr. North Wind, who had stopped singing quite so hard. "I just said Jing-Bats to make it rhyme with hats."

"But hasn't it any sense or meaning?" asked Mr. East Wind.

"That shows," said Mr. North Wind, "that you don't understand about poetry. Nor about songs. Who cares about the sense as long as they rhyme? I'm sure I don't. I'm sure lots of poets don't. So there!"

"Oh, very well," said Mr. East Wind. "I'm sure I don't mind. I just wanted to know if I was supposed to understand what Jing-Bats were. As they're nothing at all, then I'm all right."

Mr. North Wind was singing again: "I must sing and blow,
"Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
"And race and tear,
"As I go through the air."

Now, down on the earth, the People did not know what Mr. North Wind was saying, nor did they know what a fine time he and Mr. East Wind were having, but they did know that all around things were blowing, blowing, blowing, so the Earth People said, "How terrific are the March Winds, and how hard the North Wind blows especially."

The Wasted Minutes.

It is the wasted minutes that explain the spoiled days. To let 60 seconds pass with nothing to show for them, seems a trifling matter to most of you. Yet these wasted minutes honeycomb our lives, and make them comparative failures. Make the most of every minute and there is no danger that life will disappoint you.—Girl's Companion.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Shot on the Sand Bar.

July and August of 1911 were months of great fires in the Northland. The swamp home of Kazan and Gray Wolf, and the green valley between the two ridges, had escaped the seas of devastating flame; but now, as they set forth on their wandering adventures again, it was not long before their padded feet came in contact with the seared and blackened desolation. Kazan led his blind mate first into the south. Twenty miles beyond the ridge they struck the fire-killed forests. Winds from Hudson's bay had driven the flames in an unbroken sea into the west, and they had left not a vestige of life or a patch of green. Blind Gray Wolf could not see the blackened world, but she sensed it.

All of her wonderful instincts, sharpened and developed by her blindness, told her that to the north—and not south—lay the hunting-grounds they were seeking. The strain of dog that was in Kazan still pulled him south. It was not because he sought man. It was simply dog instinct to travel southward; in the face of fire it was wolf instinct to travel northward. At the end of the third day Gray Wolf won. They recrossed the little valley between the two ridges, and swung north and west into the Athabasca country, striking a course that would ultimately bring them to the headwaters of the McFarlane river.

Late in the preceding autumn a prospector had come up to Fort Smith, on the Slave river, with a pickle bottle filled with gold dust and nuggets. He had made the find on the McFarlane. The first mails had taken the news to the outside world, and by midwinter the earliest members of a treasure-hunting horde were rushing into the country by snow-shoes and dog-sledge. Other finds came thick and fast. The McFarlane was rich in free gold, and miners by the score staked out their claims along it and began work. Latecomers swung to new fields farther north and east, and to Fort Smith came rumors of "finds" richer than those of the Yukon. A score of men at first—then a hundred, then a hundred, a thousand—rushed into the new country. Most of these were from the prairie countries to the south, and from the placer beds of the Saskatchewan and the Fraser. From the far North, traveling by way of the Mackenzie and the Liard, came a smaller number of seasoned prospectors and adventurers from the Yukon—men who knew what it meant to starve and freeze and die by inches.

One of these late comers was Sandy McTrigger. There were several reasons why Sandy had left the Yukon. He was "in bad" with the police who patrolled the country west of Dawson, and he was "broke." In spite of these facts he was one of the best prospectors that had ever followed the shores of the Klondike. He had made discoveries running up to a million or two, and had promptly lost them through gambling and drink. He had no conscience, and little fear. Brutality was the chief thing written in his face. His undershot jaw, his wide eyes, low forehead and grizzly mop of red hair proclaimed him at once as a man not to be trusted beyond one's own vision or the reach of a bullet. It was suspected that he had killed a couple of men, and robbed others, but as yet the police had failed to get anything "on" him. But along with this bad side of him, Sandy McTrigger possessed a coolness and a courage which even his worst enemies could not but admire, and also certain mental depths which his unpleasant features did not proclaim.

Inside of six months Red Gold City had sprung up on the McFarlane, a hundred and fifty miles from Fort Smith, and Fort Smith was five hundred miles from civilization. When Sandy came he looked over the crude collection of shacks, gambling houses and saloons in the new town, and made up his mind that the time was not ripe for any of his "inside" schemes just yet. He gambled a little, and won sufficient to buy himself grub and half an outfit. A feature of this outfit was an old muzzle-loading rifle. Sandy, who always carried the latest Savage on the market, laughed at it. But it was the best his finances would allow of. He started south—up the McFarlane. Beyond a certain point on the river prospectors had found no gold. Sandy pushed confidently beyond this point. Not until he was in new country did he begin his search. Slowly he worked his way up a small tributary whose headwaters were fifty or sixty miles to the south and east. Here and there he found fairly good placer gold. He might have panned six or eight dollars' worth a day. With this much he was disgusted. Week after week he continued to work his way up-stream, and the farther he went the poorer his pans became. At last only occasionally did he find colors. After such disgusting weeks as these Sandy was dangerous—when in the company of others. Alone he was harmless.

One afternoon he ran his canoe ashore on a white strip of sand. This was at a bend, where the stream had widened, and gave promise of at least a few colors. He had bent down close to the edge of the water when something caught his attention on the wet sand. What he saw were the footprints of animals. Two had come down to drink. They had stood side by side. And the footprints were fresh—made not more than an hour or two before. A gleam of interest shot into Sandy's eyes. He looked behind him, and up and down the stream.

"Wolves," he grunted. "Wish I could 'a' shot 'em with that old minute-gun back there. Gawd—listen to that! And in broad daylight, too!"

He jumped to his feet, staring off into the bush. A quarter of a mile away Gray Wolf had caught the dreaded scent of man in the wind, and was giving voice to her warning. It was a long wailing howl, and not until its last echoes had died away did Sandy McTrigger move. Then he returned to the canoe, took out his old gun, put a fresh cap on the nipple and disappeared quickly over the edge of the bank.

For a week Kazan and Gray Wolf had been wandering about the headwaters of the McFarlane and this was the first time since the preceding winter that Gray Wolf had caught the scent of man in the air. When the wind brought the danger-signal to her she was alone. Two or three minutes before the scent came to her Kazan had left her side in swift pursuit of a snow-shoe rabbit, and she lay flat on her belly under a bush, waiting for him. In these moments when she was alone Gray Wolf was constantly sniffing the air. Blindness had developed her scent and hearing until they were next to infallible. First she had heard the rattle of Sandy McTrigger's paddle against the side of his canoe a quarter of a mile away. Scent had followed swiftly. Five minutes after her warning howl Kazan stood at her side, his head flung up, his jaws open and panting. Sandy had hunted Arctic foxes, and he was using the Eskimo tactics now, swinging in a half-circle until he should come up in the face of the wind. Kazan caught a single whiff of the tainted air and his spine grew stiff. But blind Gray Wolf was keener than the little red-eyed fox of the north. Her pointed nose slowly followed Sandy's progress. She heard a dry stick crack under his feet three hundred yards away. She caught the metallic click of his gun-barrel as it struck a birch sapling. The moment she lost Sandy in the wind she whined and rubbed herself against Kazan and trotted a few steps to the southwest.

At times such as this Kazan seldom refused to take guidance from her. They trotted away side by side and by the time Sandy was creeping up snake-like with the wind in his face, Kazan was peering from the fringe of river brush down upon the canoe on the white strip of sand. When Sandy returned, after an hour of futile stalking, two fresh tracks led straight down to the canoe. He looked at them in amazement and then a sinister grin wrinkled his ugly face. He chuckled as he went to his kit and dug out a small rubber bag. From this he drew a tightly corked bottle, filled with gelatin capsules. In each little capsule were five grains of strychnine. There were dark hints that once upon a time Sandy McTrigger had tried one of these capsules by dropping it in a cup of coffee and giving it to a man, but the police had never proved it. He was expert in the use of poison. Probably he had killed a thousand foxes in his time, and he chuckled again as he counted out a dozen of the capsules and thought how easy it would be to get this inquisitive pair of wolves. Two or three days before he had killed a caribou, and each of the capsules he now rolled up in a little ball of deer fat, doing the work with short sticks in place of his fingers, so that there would be no man-smell clinging to the death-baits. Before sundown Sandy set out at right-angles over the plain, planting the baits. Most of them he hung to low bushes. Others he dropped in worn rabbit and caribou trails. Then he returned to the creek and cooked his supper.

The next morning he was up early, and off to the poison baits. The first bait was untouched. The second was as he had planted it. The third was gone. A thrill shot through Sandy as he looked about him. Somewhere within a radius of two or three hundred yards he would find his game. Then his glance fell to the ground under the bush where he had hung the poison capsule and an oath broke from his lips. The bait had not been eaten. The caribou fat lay scattered under the bush and still imbedded in the largest portion of it was the little white capsule—unbroken. It was Sandy's first experience with a wild creature whose instincts were sharpened by blindness, and he was puzzled. He had never known this to happen before. If a fox or a wolf could be lured to the point of touching a bait, it followed that the bait was eaten. Sandy went on to the fourth and the fifth baits. They were untouched. The sixth was torn to pieces, like the third. In this instance the capsule was broken and the white powder scattered. Two more poison baits Sandy found pulled down in this manner. He knew that Kazan and Gray Wolf had done the work, for he found the marks of their feet in a dozen different places. The accumulated bad humor of weeks of futile labor found vent in his disappointment and anger. At last he had found something tangible to curse. The failure of his poison baits he accepted as a sort of climax to his general bad luck. Everything was against him, he believed, and he made up his mind to return to Red Gold City. Early in the afternoon he launched his canoe and drifted downstream with the current. He was content to let the current do all of the work today, and he used his paddle just enough to keep his slender craft head on. He leaned back comfortably and smoked his pipe, with the old rifle between his knees. The wind was in his face and he kept a sharp watch for game.

It was late in the afternoon when Kazan and Gray Wolf came out on a sand bar five or six miles down-stream. Kazan was lapping up the cool water when Sandy drifted quietly around a bend a hundred yards above them. If the wind had been right, or if Sandy had been using his paddle, Gray Wolf would have detected danger. It was the metallic click-click of the old-fashioned lock of Sandy's rifle that awakened her to a sense of peril. Instantly she was thrilled by the nearness of it. Kazan heard the sound and stopped drinking to face it. In that moment Sandy pressed the trigger. A belch of smoke, a roar of gunpowder, and Kazan felt a red-hot stream of fire pass with the swiftness of a lightning-flash through his brain. He stumbled back, his legs gave way under him, and he crumpled down in a limp heap. Gray Wolf darted like a streak off into the bush. Blind, she had not seen Kazan wilt down upon the white sand. Not until she was a quarter of a mile away from the terrifying thunder of the white man's rifle did she stop and wait for him.

Sandy McTrigger grounded his canoe on the sand bar with an exultant yell.

"Got you, you old devil, didn't I?" he cried. "I'd 'a' got the other, too, if I'd 'a' had something besides this damned old relic!"

He turned Kazan's head over with the butt of his gun, and the leer of satisfaction in his face gave place to a sudden look of amazement. For the first time he saw the collar about Kazan's neck.

"My Gawd, it ain't a wolf," he gasped. "It's a dog, Sandy McTrigger—a dog!"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson IV.

April 22.

JESUS ANOINTED AT BETHANY. John 12: 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—She hath done what she could. Mark 14:8.

The passover referred to in verse 1 was the last one ere He laid down His life as Christ our passover sacrificed for us and concerning which He said, "I have heartily desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer" (I Cor. v. 7; Luke xxii, 15, margin). Only six days before that the events of this evening transpired. He is again in the home in Bethany to which He loved to come, and they made Him a supper at which Martha served, and Mary must surely have helped, too, as well as doing the other great thing recorded in our lesson. Lazarus, who had been three or four days in paradise, was there, too, but we have no record of any utterance from him after his return. It must have been with him, as with Paul, that it was not possible for him to utter what he had seen and heard (II Cor. xii, 4, margin). Mary, whose custom was to sit at His feet and hear His word whenever she could find the opportunity, had evidently taken it into her heart that because of the cruel death He was to suffer no friends could be near Him at that time and had therefore obtained some very costly ointment of spikenard with which to anoint Him beforehand if she should find opportunity. The occasion had now come and she was ready for it. He will never fail to provide the opportunity for those who desire to minister to Him.

Putting the accounts in Matthew, Mark and John together we learn that she poured the ointment on His head and on His feet and wiped His feet with her hair. Because Luke does not mention this anointing, but does speak of an anointing and feet washing with tears in the house of a certain Simon by a woman who was a sinner, some have thought that Luke described this anointing by Mary, but the incidents are wholly different, at a different time in His ministry and under altogether different circumstances. The name of the woman in the incident in Luke is not given, and we have no reason to give her a name. The Lord has left her unnamed. Let us also do so, while we thank God for her salvation. Returning to the incident of our lesson, we note that the house was filled with the odor of the ointment (verse 3). We think of the sweet perfume that filled the holy place where priests ministered to the Lord day by day, and we remember that the sacrifice of Christ Himself was unto God an odor of a sweet smell, and our service unto Him is spoken of in the same words (Eph. v, ii, R. V.; Phil. iv, 18).

It should greatly cheer us to know that He looks upon our ministry in this way. He who reads the heart spoke of Mary's ministry as a good work wrought on Him and an anointing of His body beforehand for His burial, and added that wherever the gospel should be preached in all the world this would be her memorial (Mark xiv, 6-9). Judas and some of the others were indignant and said, "To what purpose is this waste? This ointment might have been sold for more than 300 pence and given to the poor." Judas cared not for the poor, but he was the treasurer and a thief (verses 4-6; Matt. xxvi, 8, 9; Mark xiv, 4, 5). We are not surprised at his finding fault, but it seems unlike true disciples to call anything done for the Lord a waste. Yet there are many professed followers today who seem to think it all right to spend all they wish on themselves, but to give to the Lord by giving to the poor or to missions in their eyes at least unprofitable. How comforting it must have been to Mary to have Him say, "Let her alone; she hath done what she could!" (Mark xiv, 6-8.) In much service for Him we may not have the approval of the leaders in church work, but if He approves that is all we should desire, taking as our motto II Tim. ii, 15, with the stand taken by Paul in Gal. i, 10; Thess. ii, 4. It is most interesting to note that Mary of Bethany was the only woman who anointed His body for burial. Other women bought spices for that purpose when it was too late, but never used them, for He had risen when they reached the tomb (Luke xxiii, 55, 56; xxiv, 1-3). Nicodemus provided about a hundred pounds weight of myrrh and aloes, in which he and Joseph wrapped up the body when they lovingly laid it in the new sepulcher in the garden, wherein was never man yet laid (John xix, 38-42).

In Martha, Mary and Lazarus on this occasion may be seen by combining them what a well rounded Christian life ought to be. In Martha there is quiet ministry without being cumbered; in Mary the worship of true and believing devotion, which is always costly, for even David said, "I will not offer unto the Lord my God that which doth cost me nothing" (II Sam. xxiv, 24). In Lazarus there is the power of a resurrection life, because by reason of him many of the Jews went away and believed on Jesus, but the chief priests consulted to put Lazarus again to death (verses 10, 11). Many came together at this time simply to see a man alive who had been dead and not for Jesus' sake only (verse 9). It is well when our motto in all things is "For Jesus' sake only," willing to be always delivered to death for Jesus' sake that the life of Jesus may be made manifest in our mortal bodies.

TO STRAIGHTEN YOUNG TREES

Simple and Easily Made Support Is Shown in Illustration—Wrap Well to Avoid Rubbing Bark.

The illustration herewith shows a simple and easily made support for a young tree, or for straightening one in case it leans or crooks. If the curvature is very pronounced, it may prove necessary to attach a second forked stick (as shown by the dotted line), says a writer in The Farmer. This one should press against the curved side of the tree, while the upper fork would pull the top of the tree over and straighten the trunk. The fork may be nailed or wired (or both) securely to the stake driven into the ground, and tied to the tree with a soft cord or rag-string. At the point where it comes in contact with the tree, it should be wrapped well with some kind of material to avoid rubbing the bark.

Plant a Separate Bed For Cut Flower Roses.

Prepared by the U. S. department of agriculture.

ROSE lovers who heretofore have confined their attention to general purpose roses, cutting their house flowers from plants used for lawn or border ornamentation or for covers for arbors, should find it desirable to plant a special rose garden for cut flowers. This is practically the only plan that will result in the production of blossoms of the highest quality, according to rose specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Farmers' bulletin 750, recently issued by the department, describes such a garden and offers suggestions for its creation and maintenance. A separate garden plot is desirable for roses for cutting, the author of this publication states, because such plants require special care and attention and need more room and cultivation than roses adapted to border planting. Their segregation in a bed of their own also facilitates treatment for injurious insects and fungous attacks.

War vs. Crops

To Our Farmer Friends:

As we are now at war with another country it is the duty of every citizen to do all he can to help our country. During the past there has been a great many dead animals that we have not been able to get on account or others taking off the hide and burying the body, which, unless done according to law is a finable offense, and is also a great waste as the body of all dead animals should be made into tankage to help feed our soils.

We use all the animals we can get for our Animal Matter Fertilizers and as tankage is very scarce at present every one who has a dead animal should notify us at once so that we may be able to keep up our supply of animal matter for our fertilizers and in this manner work for the benefit of both, as by this we can furnish the farmer the very best fertilizer made and he has done his part by letting us have his dead animals for this purpose.

Be sure and notify us when you have a dead animal, also when ready for your fertilizer write us or come in and see us. There is no better fertilizer made than ours and the price is as low as it is possible for us to make it.

PRESERVING EGGS BY WATER GLASS METHOD

Department of Agriculture Explain How Housewives Can Provide for Winter Supply.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's department of the food conservation organization in this county Mrs. A. D. Cobb, chairman of the committee referred to the method of using water glass to preserve eggs. Many women became interested in the method of providing the winter's supply during the spring and summer months when eggs are more plentiful and will be interested in the following bulletin issued by the department of Agriculture:

March, April, May and June are the months when the hens of the country produce about fifty per cent. of the lay of the whole year. These are the months, also, when the thrifty housewife who has her own hens, or who can draw upon the surplus supply of a near-by neighbor, puts away in water glass or lime-water, eggs for next autumn and winter. To ensure success, care must be exercised in this operation. The following directions are from the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

In the first place, the eggs must be fresh, preferably not more than two or three days old. This is the reason why it is much more satisfactory to put away eggs produced in one's own chicken yard.

Fertile eggs are best if they can be obtained so, after the hatching exclude roosters from the flock and kill them for table as needed.

The shells must be clean. Washing an egg with a soiled shell lessens its keeping quality. The protective gelatinous covering over the shell is removed by water and when this is gone the egg spoils more rapidly.

The shells must be free from even the tiniest crack. One cracked egg will spoil a large number of sound eggs when packed in water glass.

Earthenware crocks are good containers. The crocks must be clean and sound. Scald them and let them cool completely before use. A crock holding six gallons will accommodate eighteen dozens of eggs and about twenty-two pints of solution. Too large crocks are not desirable, since they increase the liability of breaking some of the eggs, and spoiling the entire batch.

It must be remembered that the eggs on the bottom crack first and that those in the bottom of the crocks are the last to be removed for use. Eggs can be put up in smaller crocks and the eggs put in the crock first should be used first in the household.

"Water glass" is known to the chemist as sodium silicate. It can be purchased by the quart from druggists or poultry supply men. It is a pale yellow, odorless, sirupy liquid. It is diluted in the proportion of one part of silicate to nine parts of distilled water, rain water, or other water. In any case, the water should be boiled and then allowed to cool. Half fill the vessel with this solution and place the eggs in it, being careful not to crack them. The eggs can be added a few at a time until the container is filled. Be sure to keep about two inches of water glass above the eggs. Cover the crock and place it in the coolest place available from which the crock will not have to be moved. Inspect the crock from time to time and replace any water that has evaporated with cool boiled water.

When the eggs are to be used, remove them as desired, rinse in clean, cold water and use immediately.

Eggs preserved in water glass can be used for soft boiling or poaching, up to November. Before boiling such eggs prick a tiny hole in the large end of the shell with a needle to keep them from cracking. They are satisfactory for frying until about December. From that time until the end of the usual storage period—that is until March—they can be used for omelettes, scrambled eggs, custards, cakes and general cookery. As the eggs age, the white becomes thinner and is harder to beat. The yolk membrane becomes more delicate and it is correspondingly difficult to separate the whites from the yolks. Sometimes the white of the egg is tinged pink after very long keeping in water glass. This is due, probably, to a little iron which is in the sodium silicate, but which apparently does not injure the egg for food purposes.

Lime-water is also satisfactory for preserving eggs and is slightly less expensive than water glass. A solution is made up placing two or three pounds of unslaked lime in five gallons of water, which has been boiled and allowed to cool, and allowing the mixture to stand until the lime settles and the liquid is clear. The eggs should be placed in a clean earthenware jar or other suitable vessel and covered to a depth of two inches with the liquid. Remove the eggs as desired, rinse in clean, cold water, and use immediately.

Mrs. F. D. Britton and son, Lowell left this afternoon for Edinburg with relatives at Edinburg. Before returning home they will also visit at Nimveh.

Know Your Russia.

Starbeams in the Kansas City Star says:
"Certain writers keep deriding our ignorance of Russia," said Prof. Pate. "I have interviewed a number of my fellow-citizens, and I find that almost without exception they believed themselves thoroughly posted. In the school readers of their youth they learned that the chief business of Russian gentlemen has long been standing up in wildly careening sledges, each drawn by three horses abreast, and pouring the whip to the steeds with one hand, while flinging small children to ravening wolves with the other. Beyond that according to the average American, nothing much ever happened in Russia until the country went bone dry and dethroned the czar.

From the way us Allies are denting the w. k Hindenburg line it looks like some of the German soldiers might be back in Berlin in plenty of time to prepare their Christmas dinner.

Whizzer matter with the Crown Prince? He hasn't been killed for almost a year now, and we can't remember when he did say anything.
